

The tubes consists of hollow 316 SS and wher joined are also linked as to form on single unit that when air is purged from the extended bottom, it exits in small holes (to be discussed) on the outside perimeter of the cage support.

Purged air would thus enter the hollow structure at the bottom and flow through the small holes which is in contact with the filter material.

